Central Iowa Healthcare's Dawnett Willis has been named Vice President of Operations. Willis joined Central Iowa Healthcare in 2013 after previously working at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital-Allen.

Central Iowa Healthcare Announces Leadership Promotion

Marshalltown—Central Iowa Healthcare is pleased to announce the promotion of Dawnett Willis to Vice President of Operations. Willis previously held the position of Executive Director of Business Development.

“Dawnett has done an outstanding job in her time at Central Iowa Healthcare,” said John Hughes, President and CEO. “Her dedication to our organization and high-level performance certainly demonstrates that she is up to the challenge of this position.”

As the Vice President of Operations, Willis is responsible for the day-to-day hospital operations and oversees the CIH Clinics system. Additionally, she oversees outpatient ancillary departments, business development, physician recruitment and strategic planning and growth. She is responsible for new service line development and implementation, patient and employee satisfaction scores and contract negotiations.

Willis joined Central Iowa Healthcare (then MMSC) in 2013 after previously working at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital-Allen as the Director of Outpatient Services. She holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration and will complete her MBA from Bellevue University this summer. Willis resides in Marshalltown with her husband Alan and three of their school-age children.
